Parents of Azia Kim Apprehended at Parents' Weekend

STANFORD, CA — In a bizarre continuation of the scandal that swept the campus just three years ago, it appears that the parents of Stanford imposter Azia Kim have been apprehended for falsely attending Parents Weekend.

Authorities grew suspicious of the couple when a security guard witnessed

Mr. Kim boosting Mrs. Kim into an open first floor window of Crothers Hall.

After further investigation, it became clear that the duo was attempting to gain access into Provost Bravman's Parent's Weekend talk entitled "Finding a Balance at Stanford."

Despite the fact that the couple was never issued the official lanyards given to all students' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kim had previously navigated Parent's Weekend undetected.

Visiting parents expressed concern over security flaws that could lead to such a mishap. Mary McDonnell, a mother of an undergraduate who interacted directly with Mrs. Kim, was particularly distraught.

"To think that I participated in the same library tour with someone who I trusted to be a respected Stanford parent," McDonnell stated, "and then find this out... it really scares me."

Although Stanford is not pressing charges, administrators are forcing the couple to return the decorative Stanford gear they received upon arrival, as well as the "Stanford Mom" shirt purchased by Mrs. Kim during the weekend. (Tanabe)

Student Sexiled By Mother, Permanently Scarred

When freshman Josh Crawford's mother Lillian informed him that she would be attending Parents' Weekend, he expected that she would spend her time exploring campus and buying him overpriced meals in Palo Alto.

"I thought she would just act like a normal parent," he told reporters, "but I guess I should have known better."

No time 2 go back 2 hotel. U understand.

Last Saturday, Josh returned to his room after a night on the row to find a black stocking tied around his doorknob.

He immediately realized that he had been sexiled, but he initially had no idea who was in the room. "I knew it wasn't my roommate in there since he's a CS major," explained Josh. Confused, Josh checked his phone and saw that his mom had sent him the following text message: "Met a hot dad on walking tour. No time 2 go back 2 hotel. U understand."

Angry and disgusted, Josh made his way to his dorm's lounge, where he spent a restless night trying to block out an onslaught of disturbing mental images.

On Sunday morning, Josh returned to find his room empty, with both his and his roommate's sheets in disarray.

He refused to see his mother again before she left, and two days later, still had not forgiven her. When asked about the situation, Lillian stated, "I don't understand why Josh is making such a big deal of this. Honestly, I think he's just upset that his 50-year-old mother is getting more action than he is!" (Kuenzel)

Area Man Humiliated by Hands-Free Wireless Device

STANFORD, CA — Sophomore Jim Callofax had an embarrassing experience last Wednesday. While sitting in the quad talking to his four-year-old niece on a Bluetooth "hands-free" phone, Amanda Walkins, a junior majoring in Gender Studies, walked in front of him.

According to several spectators in the area, Callofax responded, saying "Come over here, coochie coo." He looked questioningly at the shocked Walkins who had stopped in front of him but thinking it wasn't important, he continued. "I'm going over to your house, and I'm gonna jump on you, and I'm gonna blow raspberries all over your stomach . . . why are you looking at me?"

Callofax was then incapacitated with several shots of pepper spray and a jolt from a tazer the woman was carrying. At a hearing on the case held by the University Disciplinary Committee, Callofax was censured for his actions. (Pulsipher)
