

HEADLINES

Student's Kindle Not Working

Freshman Growing Accustomed to Roomate's Masturbation Habits

ANDREW LUCK SKIPS NFL, GOES STRAIGHT TO PRISON

Following what will surely be another amazing season, star quarterback Andrew Luck has decided to skip enrollment in the NFL and go straight to prison, a move which has excited a flurry of activity among the higher echelons of the pre-game-show douchebag world.

Mark Walder, a veteran sports analyst for ESPN, said this is just the latest in a string of brilliant career moves. "It takes months, sometimes even years, for a star athlete to finally earn his rightful place in prison," Walder said in an interview Thursday. "Even after assaulting 32 Cuban hookers during the regular NFL season, Tom Brady was unable to secure a place in the Plymouth County Penitentiary. It's absurd. I think Luck's finally realizing how the game is played."

A picture of a sad, sad jail.

Other analysts, such as Al Styrel of "Sportswatch," vehemently disagree. "Playing in the NFL is an integral and unavoidable part of going to prison," Styrel wrote in The Watch. You can't just cut out the middle man. This is football we're talking about, not haggling with Persian rug merchants! Luck should take heed of the experienced NFL felons preceding him who actually took the time to cultivate criminal records before heading off to prison. Does he think that Michael Vick just 'made it' without first violating a slew of animal rights regulations? He's just too cocky."

Luck, however, remains optimistic. "Stanford is all about defying convention," Luck told reporters after Saturday's stunning 48-7 win against Colorado. "No ESPN analyst is going to keep me from my rightful place in the California State Penitentiary system."

Only time will reveal the next steps in Andrew Luck's exceptional football career, but rumors are already circulating that scouts from the San Quentin Prison facility will be in the stands at the next game. (Foucart)

CHINLIT 18N Enrollment Skyrockets Since Last Autumn

1 - 10 of 36 results for: chinlit

CHINLIT 18N: Hints of Homosexuality in Daoist Literature (CHINLIT

In this class we read the major texts of Daoist literature, while viewing them through the grammar and commonly used vocabulary. Students with no background in classical Chinese major requirements must begin with 125. Prerequisite: CHINLANG 23 or equivalent.

Terms: Aut | Units: 2-5 | Grading: Letter or Credit/No Credit

Following in the footsteps of CS 106A, enrollment in CHINLIT18N: Hints of Homosexuality in Daoist Literature has more than doubled since last autumn, according to the latest statistics from the Registrar's Office. The course, which had two students in 2010, currently has five students enrolled with one shopping. Professor Sheila Cheung said that she is thrilled with the dramatically increased interest in her class. "I think this is a sign of greater intellectual trends at Stanford. It seems like Chinese Literature is sexy again." Cheung continued, "With this type of exponential growth, I predict that 72% of Stanford students will be majoring or minoring in Chinese Literature by 2016."

The increased enrollment has introduced a number of logistical challenges. For example, the course location had to be switched from 460-307, a classroom with a small square table and four chairs, to 460-308, a classroom with a slightly larger rectangular table and eight chairs. "It's a good thing the university was able to accommodate our larger size so quickly," said Rebecca Farmworth, a student in the class.

Along with the other faculty member in the Chinese Literature department, Professor Cheung is working tirelessly to ensure that the enrollment spike does not cause a decline in the quality of education. "I don't want the class to feel like an impersonal factory," said Professor Cheung. "I am doing everything in my power to make sure that none of these students feel like another indistinguishable face in the crowd." (Kuenzel)

John Arrillaga Wakes Up From Bender to Discover He's Spent Billions on Buildings

Sources close to the Arrillaga Family report that on Monday, construction and real estate mogul John Arrillaga woke up after several blacked-out years of continuous binge drinking to discover that he had financed and facilitated the construction of billions of dollars worth of Stanford facilities.

Reportedly, the business man and philanthropist was sitting hunched-over at his breakfast nook when an assistant asked for approval on the blueprints for a new building he had no recollection of donating. His mood quickly shifted from confused to enraged when he learned of all the other buildings he had financed over the years. "Why the fuck would I build two gyms?" he asked his terrified secretary, "And why did they approve the new dining hall? There are three others within a block!"

University administrators are concerned that such a reliable source of funding may "dry up," but reassured trustees with the fact that Helen Bing's opium addiction is still going strong. (Doherty)

First Time Full-Mooner?

Take the Flipside's Full Moon Bingo Card With You!

Got a bingo? Completed the full Flipside card?

Send us an email at flipside@stanford.edu and we will freak out.

	F	M	O	T	Q
Sketchy Grad Student	Kid in Bingo Tank	Andrew Luck	Nigerian Prince	Karel
White Plaza Sax Man	Very Hairy Man	RCC	Condi	Frog Prince
Roommate	Dictator	Free	Paly Kid	Your RF
Illegal Immigrant	Your Elbow	Batman	That Girl	Your RA
The Admissions Mistake	Child Genius	FEMST Major	A-TRAK	The Kid Who Cured Cancer

ENTER THE FLIPSIDE PUZZLE CHALLENGE!

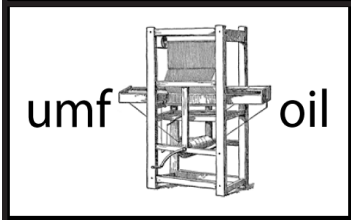

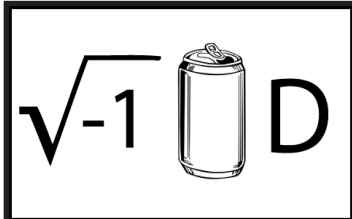

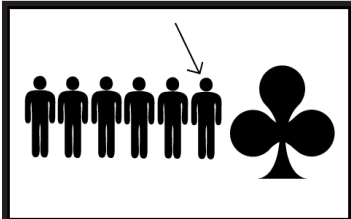

Go to stanfordflipside.com to submit your answers to the puzzle challenge. The first solver will win a Flipside shot glass!

Congratulations to last week's winner: Jesse Ikeme

QUOTE: "Pass this bill." –Barak Obama, working on personal finances with Michelle Obama.

REBUS PUZZLES

Can you guess the common word or phrase portrayed below?

last week's answers: WORD TO THE WISE, BEER BELLY, THREE MUSKETEERS, ANTHILL

NUMBERS

4^S

The number that comes after 4 according to Apple. Also interesting is 3G, the number that comes after one. Apple-phones are still waiting to find out what comes next, but without Steve Jobs' innovative perspective, it will probably just be the predictable 5T.

take a deep breath, count to 10 Apple-style, and then visit stanfordflipside.com.

CRYPTOGRAM CHALLENGE

This is a simple substitution code. Each letter is replaced by a different letter. Try to decode the message or quote below. HINT X = O

RXXU AYXAHY PGY RXXU JYMPKZY VBYW'LY MXCY VX EOZUXC VBGXKRB TPOHKGY. EY

RYV LYGW HOVVHY EOZUXC TGXC ZKMMYZZ, WXK ISXE. -EOHHOPC ZPGXWPS

LAST WEEK'S ANSWER: CONTEMPT IS THE EMOTION WE FEEL FOR AN OPPONENT WHOSE ARGUMENTS ARE TOO FORMIDABLE TO REFUTE. -GEORGE ORWELL

FLIPSIDE TSHIRT

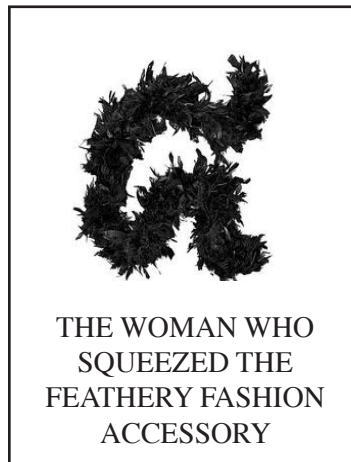

Each week we will feature the design of a limited edition t-shirt for $10. Flipside Logo on the back. To order a shirt, email flipside@stanford.edu or talk to someone on the Flipside. Heat press + Vinyl = High Quality T-Shirt

The Stanford Flipside is a weekly satirical newsletter. Our stories are fictional, but we make jokes about real issues. Our goal is not to offend you, but to make you laugh and to reframe our world to point out the absurdities. Anyone is free to join the Flipside, and we would love to have you! We meet Tuesdays at 9pm to brainstorm. Contact flipside@stanford.edu for more information.

JUMBLE

Unscramble these four ordinary jumbles, and use the letters in circles to answer the final question.

URCTO
○ ○ □ □ ○

LOORC
□ ○ □ ○ ○

STRAHH
○ □ ○ ○ ○ □

NASBCI
○ □ ○ ○ ○ □

LAST WEEK'S ANSWERS: MAJOR TIGHT THETAS TICKLE what the insane heterosexual wore STRAIGHT JACKET

Editorial Board: Jeremy Keeshin, Zach Galant, Adam Adler, Laney Kuenzel, Eric Karpas