Rejected Class of 2014 Enjoys a Weekend on the Farm

This past weekend, many of the 92.8 percent of Stanford applicants who did not receive admission to the University were given a unique opportunity to get to know the college that they will not be attending for the next four years. The 'No-Fros' partook in a wide range of activities, such as meeting professors who will never teach them anything and enjoying classic Stanford traditions such as fountain hopping that they might later think about wistfully.

School administrators hail Reject Weekend as a resounding success. Dean of Admission Richard Shaw says that the event works wonders for Stanford's yield. "100 percent of Reject Weekend attendees do not end up coming to Stanford, a percentage that is tied for highest in the nation with prestigious institutions such as Harvard and Yale," he noted. "Those aren't the type of numbers you can ignore."

Continuing the trend of recent years, planners created a slogan printed on a banner to greet the rejects as they enter the University and repeated often throughout the weekend. The Reject Class of 2014 is hailed with You might try and get in for grad school, but we probably won't take you then either, continuing the theme of 2013's Zebbras don't change their stripes and 2012's You will never be good enough.

Stanford rejects take the exact same campus tour as their accepted counterparts, a point that guides often like to bring up. "And just think," said Miranda Lambert '11, leading a pack of them to Green Library, "exactly a week ago, the smart kids who will actually be coming here next year put their godly little feet on this same patch of library floor that you're walking on right now. Makes you wish you worked harder doesn't it?" One of the rejects raised his hand. "Doesn't that seem a little mean-spirited?" he asked. "Absolutely not," Lambert replied, thinking quickly on her feet as only Stanford students can do. "That's the type of negative mentality that probably got you rejected in the first place." Opinion: Frat Boys Have Rights Too!

*Note to the reader: words that didn't meet The Flipside's decency standard have been replaced with s.

Fk, this has got to fking stop! Frat boys around the world, hear my call to rise up and fight for our rights.

Rise up and unite against the looming cloud of oppression! Our rights to free speech are imperiled. Last week, some dude used a perfectly normal word in a perfectly normal way to describe a perfectly normal loser. He called somebody a—oh wait, I'm not allowed to say it anymore—starts with f and rhymes with bag. Or tag. How about I just say, "f-bag?" Yeah. Bring it.

And this is a slippery slope. After they take away "f-bag," they'll take "d-bag," and then they'll take "a-hole," and then before we know it, we won't even be able to say "butt-fker."

We, the fraternal brothers of the world, need to speak out against this tyranny. We have the right to our kegs! We have the right to wear wife-beaters. And we have the right to stagger drunkenly across our sticky floors admiring the cleavage of sorority girls.

Seriously guys, this is gay,

Party Starts Before Ke$ha Walks In

This weekend, Stanford students in Loro threw a party that started before the arrival of Ke$ha. Guests were surprised that the DJ made it pop and blew the speakers up without even receiving instruction from the music sensation.

"Yeah, we just opened a few beers and threw on some tunes," said party host Jason

Holmes. "We were just playing some pong, and some guy was like, 'Hey man, sick party!' We didn't even know it began."

Tens of people then started flowing into the room, flocking from all over campus because they heard there was a party. Before anyone knew it, people were dancing on tables and making terrible life decisions.

Jason and his friends thought Ke$ha didn't come because she was probably still getting her pedicure on her toes toes and trying on all her clothes clothes. "We thought the party couldn't start until Ke$ha came," said Jason's roommate Alberto, "but it all just happened so fast."

When Ke$ha was reached for comment, she just said "Whoah whoah wha-oh, whoah whoah wha-oh." (Galant)
